

Cracks At Creation. High finance is an ancient number these days. Profiteering has backed it off the stage.

It is time, mothers, for you to demand an eight hour day for yourselves. You deserve it.

All this talk about "saving Europe" bears the earmark of carefully staged campaign of propaganda. Some one wants to get richer quicker.

No chance whatever of dying of ennui these days. When we can't have a strike we can generally scare up a race riot or two.

Strange as it may seem, national prohibition has been hitting it up for some weeks now, and the nation still survives.

Just how the government is going to force all prices back to normal we do not know. But it should be done—must be done—if the future of this country is not to be menaced.

We have laws to punish the man who beats his wife or dog, but the profiteer whose greed brings starvation to their door goes free—is rich and honored among men. Queer, but true.

Listen, mother! Just dig out those old gingham dresses you have had stored away for so many years, and your daughter will be quite stylishly dressed. Silk is only a cheap fabric these days.

Perhaps in time, when the president and the senate have talked themselves to death over the league of nations, the rest of us will graciously condescend to forget all about the darned thing.

We see by the papers that Sergeant York is to establish a university for the instruction of the youth of Tennessee. We presume, of course, he will shoot his ideas through the muzzle of a high powered rifle.

A "kick," it seems, has been discovered in root beer. But, then—All through life,

In some way or other, The world has just one Kick after another.

Now we are told that by 1924 tobacco will also be on the prohibited list. Well, at any rate, we can roll up a devil of a lot of puffs in the five years that are left us—provided we can also dig up the price.

A good old friend of ours crept his way into the office yesterday, planked himself down in our best chair, stared fixedly and mournfully into space for half an hour, then shoved his fist into his pocket, drew out a shining silver dollar, reverently kissed it, handed it to us with averted eyes, dashed away the tears, and staggered blindly from the shop. Now he only owes us for two years.

There was never a time in the history of this town when the readers of this paper were so interested in the advertising columns as they are today. With prices of everything up in the clouds, the average man or woman is keenly alive to the possibility of shaving off a cent or two in the price of necessities, and watches the ads like a hawk in the hope of finding some relief. The WISE merchant takes advantage of this and places his propositions before the people each week.

If every person in this town would devote thirty minutes each week to cleaning and beautifying their premises and the public highways and vacant places we would soon be living in a veritable Garden of Eden. And it is so simple, and easy, and without material cost. But, like every other proposition in life, it requires a head, a directing genius, some one to take the lead and push it along and keep it pushing. Have we such a genius among our citizenship?

We extend our sympathy, congratulations, and commendation to our friends in congress who have given up their six weeks vacation in order to settle the grave problems which are causing so much unrest in the country just now. We have hopes that something tangible will come out of Washington—something that will stabilize the dollar, return conditions to normal, allay the growing unrest of the people, and bring sanity out of the chaotic conditions which now surround us.

Our philosopher says: Don't feed the stock mor'n they can eat up clean. Even a pig don't relish left overs.

It is better to be an old man's darling than a young man's slave—provided the old man is a man and not a silly ass.

Dr MILTON ELLIOTT Will Locate In Danville.

It gives the Record great pleasure to recommend to the good people of Danville and Boyle county, Dr. Milton Elliott, of this city, who has recently graduated with splendid honors in the Dental Department of the University of Louisville, and expects to locate in Danville, to practice his profession about September 1st.

Dr. Elliott is one our brightest and most affable young men and exceedingly popular with everyone, all of whom see and predict for him, a bright and prosperous future in his new field of work.

The Danville Advocate has the following to say of the office which is being equipped for Dr. Elliott, which is the "last thing" in an office of this character. It says:

"Dr. Milton Elliott, of Lancaster, son of Dr. William M. Elliott, who is well and favorably known in Danville, has decided to locate in this city for the practice of his profession, that of dentistry. He is now having as complete an office as can be found in entire Southland installed in the Mannini Building, over the Parks store and expects to open it up about the first of September. Besides every modern convenience, he will have the very latest high-powered X-ray machine for the purpose of photographing the roots of teeth and this modern innovation will be most welcome to Danville. Dental Surgeons have learned in the last few years that a great deal of the trouble of the human race are attributable to bad teeth—teeth that are apparently good, but when photographed show that they are sending toxic poisoning throughout the system, which oftentimes results fatally. This insidious infection is invariably detected by the use of the X-Ray."

1919 Taxes Now Due.

The city taxes for the year 1919 are now past due and many have paid and have been given their receipt. Mr. Herron tells us that the penalty will go in a few weeks and he wants everyone to come across before that time, if you want to save some money.

Fine Tomatoes.

Mr. and Mrs. U. D. Simpson received a crate of Ponderosa tomatoes this week, grown by their son, Mr. Henry Simpon, in Lexington, that were the finest we have ever seen.

They were just as good as they looked, for Mrs. Simpson gave us half a dozen that was a load to carry.

Big Sale Soon.

Watch for the advertisement in next weeks issue of the Record for the sale of the Kavanaugh and Hudson farm, three miles from Lancaster and containing 368 acres. Its a dandy and will be sold to dissolve the partnership. The United Realty Company, of Lexington will have the sale in charge and it will sell.

Pipe Line For Lincoln.

On the back page of the first section of this issue you will find the advertisement of "The Lincoln Pipe Line and Refining Co." which tells you some interesting news and will convince you beyond a doubt that the line will be built and also tells of the fabulous sums of money that is now being and has been made from the pipe line refineries. Read it, it will pay you.

Hen Will Receive.

Lady Walnut Hill, the hen that beat the world's record by laying 94 eggs in 94 days and 292 eggs in a year, will receive visitors at the exhibit of the College of Agriculture at the State Fair in September. This exhibit by the college will be much more comprehensive and attractive than it was in 1918. Great care and thought have been put into making the care of soil, the management of farms, the handling of live stock and the building of a dairy herd impressive.

Shows $100,000 Bull.

One hundred and fifty breeders attended the annual open air meeting of the Kentucky Holstein Breeders' Association August 5th at Coldstream Farm near Lexington. The guests were shown the herd bull which was recently purchased for $100,000, a cow worth $25,000, and other animals of great value.

The guests were addressed by D. D. Aitkin, of Flint, Mich., president of the American Holstein Breeders' Association, Fred Field, breeder, of Monticello, Mass., J. W. Newman, of Versailles, and Prof. J. J. Hooper, of the Kentucky Experiment Station.

GEORGE O. BARNES Memorial Fund Growing Rapidly.

A fund of $1,000 is being raised through friends of the late George O. Barnes to have erected over his grave at the Danville cemetery a monument in keeping to the splendid man that he was.

Brother Barnes had numerous friends and admirers in this county and no doubt many of them will gladly contribute to such a fund.

The idea was conceived by Editor E. C. Walton of the Interior Journal and nearly the desired amount has been raised. It is hoped that many Garrard friends will respond and in such event should leave their subscriptions at this office or forward same to Mr. Walton at Stanford.

Some women have crow's feet around their eyes, because they do not wear Byrne's scientifically fitted glasses.

Baby Girl.

Friends here will be interested to learn that Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Elkin, Jr., are rejoicing over the arrival of a little girl at their Atlanta home last Tuesday.

Brodhead Fair.

Many from this county will attend the Brodhead Fair next week, which begins in that city next Tuesday, August 20th. This is without doubt one of the very best county fairs in the state and if you want to have a great day, don't fail to attend.

Roasting Ears.

We are indebted to our good old friend, Mr. B. L. Kelly, for a fine lot of roasting ears sent us a few mornings ago. There were just two ears in the lot, but it made several nice "messes" the ears being the largest we have yet seen.

Clubs Help Schools.

Recent figures from Washington show the value of agricultural club work for boys and girls in school. Records kept of pupils in rural schools prove conclusively that club members invariably have better marks than those children not in clubs.

Several Sales.

Mr. W. T. King, our local auctioneer and real estate dealer, has been making a few sales during the past week that have been "eye-openers."

He sold last Saturday the property of Mrs. Sophia Treadaway, in Paint Lick, for $3050.00; the farm of Mr. Will Smith on the Kirksville pike to a Mr. Rhodus, for $8,000.00; the store-room, stock of goods and dwelling of J. B. Ross, at Round Hill, to Will Smith, for a reported price of about $14,000.

Why Shoes Are High.

The Federal Trade Commission, reporting to congress, declared high shoe prices are due to excessive profits. It is charged the packers began pyramiding shoe prices by unwaranteed hide price increases, the supply of which it is alleged they control. On top of this the tanners took exceptional profits, while shoe manufacturers demanded an unusual margin and retail orders charged prices that are not justifiable. The commission's report covered a four year's period, 1914 to 1918.

Flour To Be Reasonable

Details of the United States Grain Corporation plan to sell flour at $10 a barrel were made public recently by Julius H. Barnes, United States wheat director. Under the plan restrictions are placed on the price to be charged by wholesalers, jobbers and retailers. The flour will be sold in 140-pound sacks on a basis of $10 in the territory west of the Illinois and Indiana line and west of the Mississippi from Cairo to the Gulf of Mexico, not including the Pacific coast region, and at $10.25 in the remainder of the country. Jobbers and wholesalers must guarantee to re-sell to retailers at not more than 75 cents additional and retailers are confined to an increase of not more than $1.25 over the wholesale price for the original packages and must not charge more than seven cents a pound for broken packages of any size.

PAINT LICK TEAM Easily Defeats Lawrenceburg Last Saturday.

Before a crowd of several hundred people, the Paint Lick Baseball team easily defeated the crack Lawrenceburg team by a score of 8 to 0 on the former's grounds last Saturday afternoon.

The pitching of Clell Tatum was decidedly the feature of the entire game and his balls seemed invincible, easily fanning them one after another.

The Lawrenceburg boys claimed that they had played eighteen games during the summer and had only been defeated one time during the season. They have a different tale to tell now. They evidently haven't been up against many teams like Paint Lick, from the showing they made there last Saturday.

Doty Cleans Up At Harrodsburg Fair.

After making an almost perfect record at the Mercer county fair in Harrodsburg last week, Edgar T. Doty, of Richmond, is showing his string of saddle and harness horses at Berea's big fair this week. He will then show at Perryville, Lawrenceburg, Shelbyville and the State Fair at Louisville. Mr. Doty made in all, eight shows at Harrodsburg and took six blues, being second in one ring and third in another. He won the sweepstakes harness ring with his stallion Nobleman, the heavy harness classes with Tarzan and cleaned up the three-year-old rings with his crack filly, the Lady in Grey, full sister to Maydan. Many expert horsemen who saw this grand little filly in action, say that she gives promise of developing into a better show prospect than her grey brother, Mr. Doty's sorrel mare, Flashlight, became ill and he did not show her at Harrodsburg.—Richmond Register.

Why Food Prices Are Increasing.

"During the last fifty or seventy-five years (principally since 1840), while the large cities in this country and Europe have been growing the established agricultural areas that produced food were supplemented by the opening up of new lands in the middle West, Canada, Brazil, Argentina, South and Central Africa, Australia and Siberia.

"Food products, chiefly grains and meats, were produced on virgin, unfertilized lands. Emigrant labor was employed and subsequently there was cheap railroad and steamship transportation, so until recently the people in cities have been fed on food produced and sold at a price which did not take into consideration the cost of production and the value of plant food contained in crops which must be returned to the soil to maintain productively."—Report of the Food Problem Committee, the Merchants' Association of New York.

JUDGE HARDIN Makes Statement And Gives Some Reasons For His Recent Defeat.

A statement by Judge Charles A. Hardin of the cause that he believes led to his defeat for congress, has been made. The stay at home vote was the principal cause, but there were "a multiplicity of causes." Holding the special election on the day of the primary lost him many votes as there was much indifference in the contests. Opposition to the income tax, the new state tax law, Swope's extravagant promises to the soldiers and plea that they stood together regardless of politics, the high cost of living and the unique situation of the primary and confusing it with the primary lost him many votes as there was much indifference in the contests.

Definition of Kindness.
The teacher of the intermediate room had been trying to teach her pupils the value of many virtues—such as truthfulness, honesty, kindness, etc. To test their knowledge she gave them an examination, asking for definitions for these virtues. One youngster defined kindness in this way: "Kindness is being kind to every human creature from a ant up."

"Peter's Pence."
Peterspence or Peter's pence was the annual contribution for the support of the papacy. It consisted of the payment of a silver penny by every family that possessed land or cattle whose value was 30 pence. In England this payment was abolished under Henry VIII, and in other countries did not survive the Reformation.

The Gypsy's Revenge.
W. H. Campbell had his fortune told last week by one of the gypsies who have been in this neighborhood lately. While he was getting some gasoline at the Halsey garage, preparatory to a trip to Albany, he was approached by one of the fortune tellers, who asked for money. On his refusal to "come across" she told him he would have bad luck all the rest of the day. And sure enough, he had gone only a short distance when the rear axle of his car broke!—Oregonian.

World's Greatest Cataract.
What is set down as the greatest cataract in the world is on the Iguaçu river, which partly separates Brazil and Argentina. The precipice over which the river plunges is 210 feet high, that of Niagara being 167 feet. The cataract is 13,123 feet wide, or about two and a half times as wide as Niagara. It is estimated that 100,000,000 tons of water pass over Niagara in an hour. A like estimate gives the falls of Iguaçu 140,000,000 tons.

Birds and Flowers.
It has been estimated that there are 2000 varieties of wild flowers growing in the Rocky Mountain National park, and more than 1000 species of birds building their homes in the firs, aspens, spruces and willows of that section. Plants That Feed on Animals.
That such plants as "Venus' flytrap" actually catch and squeeze to death flies and other insects alighting on their leaves has long been known, but the discovery is comparatively recent that the plants digest the softer parts of their prey by means of peptic ferment secreted by the leaves. These are real instances of plants feeding upon animals.

Cicada a Dainty Feeder.
The real locust is an indiscriminate eater, grain fields, cornfields, meadows, pastures, weed patches—everywhere falls before him. The periodical cicada is dainty almost beyond belief. It was long believed that in the adult stage it took no nourishment at all. But the "seventeen-year locust" does eat while in the adult age, its diet being confined to the juices of plants, sucked out in very small quantities and without causing injury.

Exempted for Reason.
When parliament of the commonwealth of Australia enacted a law some years ago prohibiting the employment of Asiatic and native island laborers in that country, the crews, divers and other workers in the pearl industry at Broome were Malays and Japanese. More than 1,500 Japanese were employed in the pearl-fishing fleets. For a time it was feared that the new law would destroy the industry, but no attempt was made to enforce the law.

PUBLIC SALE

of three farms near Nonesuch, Woodford County, on Thursday, August 21st, 1919

AT 10:00 A. M.

on the premises.

The owner, C. A. Reed, has instructed us to subdivide and sell his farm of 329 acres in three tracts as follows:

The homeplace comprises about 140 acres, has a splendid new eight-room house with front and back porches, with all necessary outbuildings, including stock barn, large tobacco barn, is well watered and very well fenced. This is an ideal home and has been in the family for many, many years and owing to the age and feeble health of the owner, he has decided to sell and move to town. The location of this place is very desirable, being within a quarter of a mile of the village of Nonesuch, where there are two churches, two stores and a nine months graded school. For a home or an investment, you couldn't beat this farm.

TRACT NO. 2 comprises about 80 acres; has a log house weatherboarded, well watered and all table land and we think as good land as you will find in Clover Bottom; has a splendid pike frontage and a very desirable small farm.

TRACT NO. 3 comprises about 100 acres, has a 5-room house, barn, other outbuildings, one of the best springs in the county. About 60 acres of this is in grass, balance in cultivation.

These tracts will be sold singly and not as a whole. Terms very liberal and made known on day of sale.

Is it Possible to Legislate Life and Brains?

Swift & Company is primarily an organization of men, not a collection of brick, mortar, and machinery.

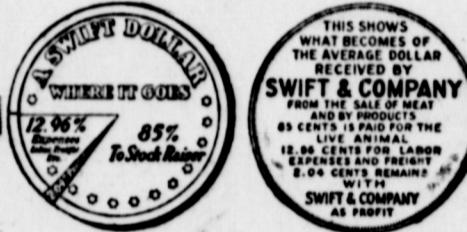

Packing Plants, their equipment and usefulness are only outward symbols of the intelligence, life-long experience, and right purpose of the men who compose the organization and of those who direct it.

Will not Government direction of the packing industry, now contemplated by Congress, take over the empty husk of physical property and equipment and sacrifice the initiative, experience and devotion of these men, which is the life itself of the industry?

What legislation, what political adroitness could replace such life and brains, once driven out?

Let us send you a Swift "Dollar." It will interest you.

Lisbon's Gambling Clubs. The Portuguese are born gamblers and the most brilliant side of their night life is found in the exclusive clubs of the city of Lisbon. Wonderfully appointed, with added attractions of excellent dining rooms, music, dancing, reading rooms and libraries, they are kept alive by one thing—the Portuguese love of play.

Funnel Made From Milk Bottle. A funnel that has a wide range of application about the household, and especially in food-canning season, may be made by cutting the body of an ordinary milk bottle. The bottle is trimmed at the desired point by tying an alcohol-saturated cord around it and applying a match. The glass will break evenly at that point. After breaking, the edge is smoothed off on an emery wheel and the funnel is ready for use.

Curious! Some birds are awfully curious and want to know what is going on. So if they see a human being in their neighborhood they will come close to investigate and perhaps to scold, and one of these birds is the Kentucky warbler. This bird has a preference for woods which are low and damp and ordinarily keeps well within the depth of tangled thickets. This bird, which ranges throughout the eastern United States, spends its winter in northern South America.

Filipino Proverbs. There is a certain dignity in many of the proverbs native to the Philippine Islands. "A hero is braver for his wounds," the Filipinos say. "The quality of gold is known by rubbing it against a stone." "He who despises counsel is on the way to misfortune." "Whoever believes everything that is said has no mind of his own." In some there is gentle humor. "A sleeping shrimp is carried away by the current." "A fish is caught by the mouth." "If you sleep, brother, the crocodile will eat you up."

Fairy Gold
By T. B. ALDERSON
(Copyright, 1919, by the Western News-paper Union.)

"It can never be," spoke Myra Lee in low, definite tones, and Edgar Rudd realized that she meant what she said. If he had shown genuine disappointment or real heart pain she might have regretted it, for Myra was freely sympathetic. Instead, however, his brow darkened, his eyes glowed in a wrathful, sinister way that made her shrink and shudder and he fairly hissed out:

"There's somebody else!"

"That is not for you to know," said Myra simply, and just then someone came into the room and, though silently, Rudd managed to leave the house without further outbreak.

"And I know who it is," he grated out. "It's that Morton fellow. One of the girls told me he was a regular caller on Myra. A beggarly mechanic, and she turns me down—me, with a fortune and social position. Well, I'll use both to down this presumptuous pauper who has dared to cross my path."

"The other fellow" was indeed Bruce Morton, but he was neither poverty stricken nor a common laborer. Only a year previous he had taken half a floor in a building fitted up for small industrial plants. He made a specialty of nautical instruments and acquired a very fair mechanical equipment. There was something of a mystery about Morton. He had come to the city home of his old uncle, Albert Durand, about a year previous with his mother. Mr. Durand was said to be out of his mind and his sister undertook his care.

Nobody was encouraged to visit the old Durand home. It was a gloomy mansion gone into decay.

Edgar Rudd craftily set his wits at work to find some vulnerable spot about his rival that would discredit him in the estimation of Myra, but failed utterly. The moral character of Morton was above reproach. It had been in the craven mind of Rudd to seek to undermine his business by the introduction of a rival in the same line, but he learned that Morton, while making no great pretensions as to prosperity, had a contract for his output reaching over several years with a responsible distributing house.

One day Rudd was seated in a drinking place he favored with his presence occasionally, when the conversation of two men at an adjoining table attracted his attention. He pricked up his ears as the name of Bruce Morton was mentioned, and an eager hope came into his specious mind as, like his companion half intoxicated, one of the men made the remark:

"Morton, let me go. He wouldn't if he knew what I could tell about him. I could send him to the penitentiary, and he's made the mistake of his life in setting me adrift because I went on two-days' little celebration."

The two men finally separated and Rudd set himself insidiously at work to reach the confidences of the former employee of Morton. He piled him with liquor and fanned the flame of resentment against Morton. In a maudlin way the man, who gave his name as Ethan Dalby, imparted to him the substance of his unfavorable knowledge regarding Bruce Morton.

"Whisper, now," he said, as Rudd pressed into his hand a folded bank note. "Don't mix me up with it, but work out my hint as far as you like. Morton is a counterfeiter, and the storehouse of his false coining is the mysterious old place, where he lives with his mother and uncle."

It was under the impulse of fervent elation that Rudd interested a detective in his service. A close watch was set on Morton. One day the detective made a decisive report to Rudd.

"Two nights in the week," he stated, "Morton remains after working hours in a little room of the plant which he allows no one to enter but himself. There he has molds, a stamping machine and a great mass of metal. It looks like gold. He turns out about a peck of what resembles twenty-dollar gold pieces, places them in a satchel and disappears with them in that gloomy old home of his uncle. This is one of his working nights."

"Then nail him with the goods on him," directed Rudd. "Oh, but I've got him fast now. I wonder how old John Lee would like to have a son-in-law who is a counterfeiter."

Edgar Rudd waited at his hotel all the morning expecting great news from the detective. About noon there came a brief message from that individual: "Wrong clue. Drop the case." And, as Rudd had fully paid him, the detective came upon further evidence. A week later Rudd learned all there was to the counterfeit coins.

They were simply formed of a deceptive alloy and bore the numeral "twenty" on their face, the reverse holding the word "Abyssinia." Old Albert Durand from morning till night, under the delusion that they were real money, counted them over and over with all the delight of a miser, and this diversion occupied his mind and kept him tractable.

With the marriage of Myra and Morton the schemer decided he had exhausted his efforts, and left them alone to the happy life upon which they entered.

Now All You Good Fellows, Come Fill Up Your Pipes

The Velvet tin is twice as big as shown here

15c

IF ever men are "Tom" and "Bill" to each other, it's when good pipes are a-going. If ever good pipes go their best, 'tis when Velvet's in the bowl.

For Velvet is a mighty friendly smoke. Kentucky Burley is the leaf that Nature made for pipes. Wholesome and hearty, honest as the day. And Velvet is that same good Burley leaf, brought to mellow middle age.

For eight long seasons Velvet "meditates" in wooden hogsheads, throwing off the rawness of "young" tobacco—truly "ageing in the wood." Out Velvet comes—cool, calm and generous—the tobacco Nature made good, kept good and made better.

Velvet's sweetness is the sweetness of good tobacco, not "put on" like "frosting" on a cake. Its mildness comes from natural ageing, not from having the life baked out. Its fragrance is true tobacco fragrance, not a perfume. And Velvet makes an A Number One cigarette. Roll one.

As good old Velvet Joe says:

"Fill yo' heart with friendly thoughts,
Yo' mouth with friendly smoke—
An' let the old world wag."

Somewhat Elderly "Boy."

"What's the matter with Flossie tonight?" somebody asked Tessie Tabasco in the dressing room, indicating one of the girls who was showing unmistakable signs of temper. "Her boy promised to take her out to dinner tonight, and then didn't turn up." "How was that?" "According to what she said his favorite grandchild is very ill."

Chinese Dietary.

Chinese cooking has for its general basis chicken broth or poultry jelly and red sauce. The latter accompanies nearly all the dishes; it is a kind of dissolved meat jelly flavored with pimento and coriander. Pork and mutton are almost exclusively eaten; horse and camel meat, however, may be bought. The number of edible dogs eaten annually in China is estimated at 5,000,000.

Javelle Water.

This water is fine for removing stains. Take one pound of sal soda and five cents' worth of chloride of lime. Put them in an earthen bowl, add two quarts of water and stir. Let it settle, then pour off the water and bottle it. It will remove fruit stains and even indelible ink. Soak till stain disappears; then quickly wash in warm water.

Cloth From Pineapples.

Aside from its edible qualities the pineapple is little known in this country, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. In China, however, it is especially cultivated for the use of the leaves in making cloth. The fiber is extracted from the leaves by a simple process and made into thread. It is then run on bobbins and spools and is ready for weaving, the old native looms being employed.

Worthless Without Moral Sense. Men must learn to discriminate, and that implies a moral sense and an enlightened and disciplined will. Without them failure in the business of life is certain. Masterful natures without moral sense, or, if they have it, disloyal to it, are always weak natures. History gives the record of many such. They are profitable for "instruction in righteousness."

THE FARMER

AND THE SPUDS.

A few years ago an Alabama farmer had 1,200 bushels of sweet potatoes to sell, and a southern commission house offered him half a cent a pound for them. This was the equivalent of the price offered per bushel. At the time this offer was made sweet potatoes of an inferior grade were selling in the stores in northern states at five and six cents a pound.

Investigation showed that there was not one person or one firm that was making an unconscious profit out of the difference between the consumer's and the producer's prices. But there were altogether too many people getting some profit out of each potato. There were too many middlemen. The cost of transportation was, naturally, part of the leakage. Railroads were privately owned then and freight rates were lower than they are now, but this was not enough to bring the cost of the consumer down to the proper figure. Some kind and labor disturbances.

It is time to enforce laws that will curb the unruly element that is constantly stirring up strife between the races. It is time to make America safe for Americans.

These periodical spasms about "America saving the world" undoubtedly fit in nicely with the schemes of the international bankers who want to finance the reconstruction of Europe to the detriment of our own country, thereby piling up fresh billions in profits for themselves, but they do not appeal very strongly to the man who believes in saving his own country first.

The government has taken a sudden and determined stand in the fight to force prices down to normal and keep them there. May it meet with unbounded success in this laudable undertaking—and it will if the interests of the great mass of the people are considered.

Then, when America is saved and is on a sane and stable basis of economic conditions, it will be time enough to talk of "saving Europe and the world."

WE RESPECTFULLY BEG TO REMIND—SOME OF YOU—

"The last bill that ever gets paid is the tailor's."

This used to be a familiar proverb; but is less familiar now. For one thing, cash tailors are rather numerous these days. You get your suit if you pay for it.

But in many lines of business it is usual to complain that collections in that line are slower than in any other. Every one who has collections to make thinks he is the hardest hit.

The editor of the Record does not make that complaint. There are probably people in Lancaster who have more difficulty in collecting than the management of this righteous periodical. But we have some very slow accounts among our subscribers. We don't say that they are the slowest in Lancaster, but they are very slow. So, if there are others in Lancaster that have the same difficulty, we trust that we shall not be universally misunderstood in our attitude. It is not a reproach; it is a request for consideration.

The newspaper is not a parasite. It is part of the daily life of a community, and deserves the same support as other local industries. The editor performs, or, at least, tries his utmost to perform a certain public service, and asks the public to aid him in performing it more efficiently. The less attention he needs to give to his book-keeping, the more attention he can devote to the efficient performance of the service he tries to render.

It is handy to be able to get a thing as soon as you need it. It is preferable to be able to do this—better, at least, than to wait a week or two, while a letter travels from you to a mail order house, goes through various offices and factory departments, and finally starts a movement from the stockroom to the shipping department, resulting in your ultimate attainment of what you wanted—if it is really what you asked for.

It is more convenient to be able to go around the square, pick it up in your hand, and say "how much?" to the clerk. "Yes," you admit. "It would be more convenient—if he had it in stock. But has he?"

Well; that part of it is largely up to you. If a local storekeeper finds that you will come to him first, and give him a chance of showing whether he can deliver, he has a motive for getting a microscope and studying the peculiar needs and tastes of Lancaster people. But nothing is more disheartening to a dealer than to do all the microscopic work in vain—and to find out, after he has stocked up to the best of his judgment with what he thinks we need, that we have decided to depend on the metropolis and the mails.

Folks of Lancaster, we don't want to be an imitation New York, an imitation Chicago, an imitation New Orleans, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, St. Louis. He who always quotes is never quoted. He who always imitates is never imitated.

Let's grow, folks of Lancaster. Let's be self-dependent, self-sufficient, self-supporting; and some day we'll be big enough to have others imitating us.

A GREAT LIGHT DAWNS.

On the first of January 1920, a law goes into effect by which the finance committee of the senate and the ways and means committee of the house are to form a joint committee to fix what expenditures are to be undertaken for the financial year. And when the figures have been reached, nothing can be added to them except by intervention of the president, or by a two-thirds vote of the committee.

This is better than allowing twenty different committees to authorize expenditures whenever they feel like it. It is extremely difficult to keep track of accounts in which the items total in billions. It is difficult to do these things, even when the outgoings are all recorded in one book. But when a whole library of ledgers is kept, recording the financial jazz-concerts of twenty committees, the agglomeration is simply a kaleidoscope.

No wonder that this has been the most expensively run country in the world. No wonder there have been taxes on every thing, from medicine to children's toys. The recently passed measure marks the beginning of a better day. When accounts are kept in such a way that we can really tell what we are spending, we will probably spend less, and need less.

Left Out, Somehow.

Margaret likes Ceech's puppies and always refers to them as her father does, as a "litter of puppies." A day or two ago another playmate called her in to see twin baby sisters. Margaret was thoughtful for a moment at the dinner table that day, and then, turning reproachfully to her mother, said: "We never have a litter of anything at our house."

The Camel's Swiftness.

Everyone has heard of the swiftness of the camelopard, that on his native lands he can travel faster than an Arab horse. There is a picturesque Eastern proverb which declares:

"When thou shalt meet a camel and say to the rider, good morning, before he shall have answered, he will be far off and out of sight, for the camel's swiftness is like the wind."

Wanted His Privilege.

Robert did not want to have his bobbed hair cut off. He made a great fuss. He consented after his mother told him that with short hair he would look like a big boy. At the usual bedtime his mother told him to go to bed, and he sadly said: "I wish I didn't have my hair cut. What is the use of looking like a big boy if I have to go to bed the same time as the baby boys?"

Gastineau.

On Saturday August 2nd, John Roscoe, the little infant of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Gastineau, took its little flight to live with Jesus.

The little one had been with them only a short while, but long enough to be the pride of the home.

He was only ten months old and had been sick since April. Nobody knew its suffering, but everything that could be done by loving hands and physicians was done, but all was in vain.

Its parents waited and hoped in eagerness for their baby to recover. It is nature but hard to give out the ones from our arms, for their absence are so sad. But the wisdom of our All-wise God is best, if we can think so, and He alone, can comfort in our troubles.

We extend to the sorrowing parents, and all who are grieved our deepest prayers and sympathy in their sad hour of sorrow. The little one was laid in the Lancaster Cemetery Sunday afternoon where peacefully sleeping lies.

"May we meet our darling baby, And see his smiles again, To soothe his tender forehead, Where no more farewells are said."

Memorial.

On the night of August 2nd about 9:30 o'clock, the Death Angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Gastineau and claimed as its victim their darling little ten months old son, John Roscoe. The little fellow had been ill about sixteen weeks and all that loving hands could do was without avail, for the wise and loving Father, who doeth all things well, called for his own when he willeth.

The sympathy of the entire community goes out to the fond parents and relatives in this hour of sorrow and may they be comforted in these words of Jesus: "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for such is the kingdom of heaven."

After short services at the grave on Sunday afternoon conducted by Rev. J. R. Moorman, the precious little body was laid to rest in the Lancaster cemetery.

VALUE—That's what you take out of your cream separator.

Value in a cream separator depends upon the amount and the quality of service you get out of it.

Because it lasts fifteen to twenty years the De Laval is the most economical cream separator to buy. If you consider its cleaner skimmin, easier running, greater capacity and less cost for repairs, the price of the "cheapest" machine on the market is exorbitant in comparison.

With present high butter-fat prices and the scarcity of labor this is true than ever.

The Impending Storm.

Profiteering may yet be the undoing of this country. No nation ever is greater than the government it maintains, and if the government does not conserve the interests of the people the people in time lose confidence in that form of government.

The greatest crime in the history of our country is that of profiteering, wholesale and deliberate robbery of a helpless public.

Prices have been artificially forced to such a high altitude that it is becoming more and more difficult for a poor person to even sustain life.

The law of supply and demand no longer prevails. It has been substituted by one of gouge and grab.

Already many people, men and women of sound and patriotic principles, are predicting revolution as the only means of checking this wholesale and lawless thievery.

Our government should take warning while there is yet time. Protection of profiteering should cease at once, and prosecution should be swift and relentless.

We can not afford to have our great country wrecked upon the rock of greed and avarice.

And yet today, because of the supine inactivity of our public officials, we are heading straight toward destruction.

Public endurance is at the breaking point. Revolution is hovering dangerously near.

The government should heed the impending storm, before it is too late to prepare to meet it.

While The Fields Die.

There are certain long-whiskered theorists who are worrying about the probable result of allowing German labor to provide for reconstruction in the devastated area of France. It is on behalf of the French that they are worrying. They say so.

"What will become of the French working man?" they lament. "The German workman must be kept alive, if he is to work for France; he will have to draw wages, and the French workman will be out of a job. If the Frenchman was allowed to do the work, then he could draw the wages; but with employment transferred to others he will starve."

There is a slight fallacy in this argument. If there was only a limited amount of work to be done in France, it might seem plausible, but the trouble in that country is a scarcity of men—not of jobs. It is essentially an agricultural country, and the fields of grain are rotting away for lack of harvest hands. Almost every square foot which would produce anything has been planted, and the crops are going to ruin.

If every man, woman and child lent a hand in the fields, the situation could not be saved at this date. And France must keep up a large army to provide a human bulwark against German military ambition where demobilization of the British and American armies leaves the rampart unguarded.

The long-whiskered theorists need not worry about the French working man's job. He has all the job he needs for the next fifty years. But it isn't the French workingman whom the whiskered altruists really wish to protect.

It is really the German with whom they are sympathizing. This is just one more of the numerous comic disguises with which the pro-Germans try to hide their identity.

Too Many Irons.

The packers are now being blamed for the price of meat, and the usual remedy is demanded. The government must take over the packing industry.

The government took over the railroads, and although it succeeded in making the railroads poor, it also made the shipping public poor. Using the railroads now costs so much that you feel a good deal poorer every time you indulge in that luxury.

The government is quite capable of making the packers poor. Any one who dislikes the packers can feel quite happy about that. And, as far as this paper is concerned, that may happen any time, and welcome. We should worry about what happens to the packers; we aren't in the packing business.

But while the government is making the packers poor, will it make us any richer? That is what we want to know. Will it make our meat cheaper?

If the packers have conspired to jack-screw prices up, so as to fleece the public, we don't merely want to see them ruined—pauperized. But this is a matter for accountants. If they have done so, we can easily find it out by investigating the ledgers.

Investigations up to date merely indicate that the packers make a small profit, but that the turnover is large—in a word, that the high prices are due to the high wages paid to employees, and to the cost of transportation, for which we really pay the government. Future investigations may tell a different tale; but we should ask for more proof before we ask the government to seize the packing business.

It is a highly specialized industry, needs a lifetime of experience to learn, and is very delicately organized. The government knows nothing about it, and would begin as an amateur, with everything to learn. In a few months it would dislocate the organization, and by dissipating its energies instead of concentrating them it would develop ruinous expenses which the consumer would have to defray in the increased cost of meat.

It would be an excellent thing if the government could handle all staple industries. If it could. But it will have to learn how first, and during its apprenticeship the experts must be kept close at hand to show how economics can grow out of systematizing.

Ray.

Friends and relatives received the news of the death of Mrs. Harrison Ray, although, while a distinct shock to all who knew her, her death was hourly expected as she had been confined to her room and chair several months with a complication of diseases, which caused intense suffering.

This estimable couple had enjoyed some 40 years of married happiness together. Three children came to bless this home, and a fourth while not adopted, was raised from infancy, all of whom were present at her bedside when she died.

Mrs. Ray was 58 years of age and a member of the Baptist church. Words are inadequate to express of this noble woman. She was ready to meet her Master as she had often expressed to her loved ones behind.

The death of this good woman is the severing of the best connected in Garrard county, being the last one of the last survivor of the well known

Murphy family. To know her was to love her and she was "aunt Nanie" to all and she was loved and never a stranger among babies and children.

Her remains were laid to rest in the Buckeye cemetery Saturday afternoon.

To those loved ones left behind whose loss seems so great should rejoice to think the suffering is past, a life so beautiful, one so well led for her Master is laid at his feet, could they but hear the sweetest of all words, "well done thy good and faithful servant."

Love.

Love is always blind. Many lovers wear glasses made by Byrne. At Kangaroo Hotel, Lancaster, August 25th to 28th.

All the wind in Washington about "saving daylight" will have no effect whatever on the earth. The old ball will keep right on revolving around the sun at its regulation speed, whether we pow-wow or whether we bow-wow.

Love of country can only be fostered where government is founded on suspicion and disgust in the mind of upon justice and humanity. Profiteering and greed engenders only a suffering people.

It takes young the grizzly is easy enough to handle, for at birth he weighs only from 10 to 20 ounces and is about the size of a full-grown chipmunk. Dr. B. F. Griggs, who has been exploring the volcano of Mt. Katmai, in Alaska, for the National Geographic Society, announces that this is the greatest crater in the world, being no less than nine miles in circumference and 3,000 feet in depth.

Colored Rains.

The rain can and does wash down anything that happens to be in the air at the time, including dust, pollen, small insects, but we have no record of tadpoles being washed down out of the air. The phenomena of colored rains, so-called rain of blood, etc., can be readily explained by the presence of dust in the atmosphere.

A Loving Heart

By ALDEN CHAPMAN

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western Newspaper Union)

"There, old fellow! I think you can get home comfortably now."

The tones of the speaker were as gentle and pleasing as was his clear, open face. Warren Sprague had found a dog whining and writhing in his path, one bleeding foot uplifted. A keen-pointed thorn had penetrated the paw and had broken off there. With infinite care Sprague had removed the torturing splinter. The grateful animal licked his hand affectionately, starting away limping, but wagging his tail as if his great trouble of the moment was dissipated.

Sprague started slowly in an opposite direction. As he did so there arose from some bushes the figure of a young woman of perhaps twenty. She was exquisitely featured and graceful and girlish of figure, but the face was full of anxiety and pallor and her attire common and worn. She stood peering after the man until he turned into the first house where the village began.

"He was like some angel of mercy to that dumb animal!" she breathed. "Surely he would lean tenderly towards a poor homeless waif," and the speaker sank down again among the bushes beside a bundle of wraps enclosing a sleeping child. Its cherub face was in sweet repose.

"I will wait until dark," spoke the woman in a low tone. "Then to part with the little dear. It must be given to surer care than I can provide."

Just at dark that evening a cry called the aged mother of Warren Sprague to the door. There lay the little child, and she who had witnessed the kindly act of Sprague watched from a near hedge and then went on her way satisfied.

But to reappear the next morning. She came to the pretty cottage of which the little child had become a welcome guest. Old Mrs. Sprague greeted her at the door. The visitor said that she had heard that they had taken in a child left on their threshold. She was used to children, she was seeking work and was experienced as a cook and housekeeper, and Mrs. Sprague at once engaged her.

Both son and mother were glad of the assistance proffered. From the start the little one took to its nurse as if she were an own mother. From the start, as well, neat, modest, tireless, Arline Dalton, as she called herself, lifted all care from the shoulders of Mrs. Sprague.

"She is a treasure," declared the latter with genuine ardor.

"She has a heart of gold to love that poor little waif the way she certainly does," said the son.

A month went by. The little one threw a space. Arline hustled about the house, always with a happy smile upon her face. Sprague felt a growing liking for the girlish attendant. She was very reticent as to her antecedents. She seemed to have no inclination to spend a holiday in the town; she made no outside friends.

One day Sprague learned why. Arline was with the little one in a sheltered corner of the garden and Sprague was passing beyond, when he caught the sound of a sharp cry. Peering close, he noted Arline holding little Isola protectively, almost defiantly, in her arms. Confronting her was a man with exultant face and evil eyes. He hissed toward her:

"It seems I have found you! Now then, money, or I assert my rights and you can bid goodby to the baby."

Arline drew from a pocket a little purse. She threw it at the feet of the man. "Take it!" she gasped pitifully, "only go away. If you are human, treat the little one among the kind hearts here."

The man swung away. Arline hurried into the house. For days following she acted like a person tormented with fear. She never left little Isola alone for a moment. Sprague had received a shock. There was no doubt that her visitor was her husband. For the first moment he realized that love had taken root in his heart.

About midnight a week later a suspicious sound in a room downstairs aroused him. As he went out into the hall, a revolver in his hand, he noted an unfamiliar glow. Descending, he made out a man tying up a bundle containing the family silver. Sprague recognized him as the garden visitor.

"Hands up!" ordered Sprague sternly. "I have you where your persecutor will cease. You are the husband of the young woman and the father of the child we have adopted."

"It is not true!" was interposed quickly, and Arline stood in the doorway. "This is the man who killed his wife, my sister, by his cruelty and neglect, and he has followed me for a year, extorting money as his price for allowing me to keep her child."

"We will remedy that," declared Sprague. "My man, it is in my power to send you to prison. You will write what I shall dictate, legally abandoning all claim to the child. Little Isola shall become my child and—Arline's!"

And as the compact was signed and the baffled schemer slunk away, Waller Sprague told Arline Dalton of his love.

Their Object.
"I read lately of two thieves who made a specialty of stealing music boxes." "I suppose they wanted to go to Sing Sing."

ENORMOUS LOSS IN THRESHING

Million Bushels of Grain Lost
Each Year Because of Inefficient Methods.

KEEP MACHINES IN REPAIR

Separators Out of Adjustment Are Cause of Greatest Trouble—Thresherman Should Study Manufacturer's Instructions.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Every important grain state has been losing over a million bushels of grain each year because of inefficient threshing methods, declare investigators of the United States department of agriculture. The government, by bringing this enormous loss to the attention of farmers and threshermen and showing them how to avoid it, saved 22,000,000 bushels of grain in the 21 states in which the educational work was carried on last year.

When an average of eight bushels of grain is lost on every farm in the United States at threshing time every year, that loss begins to have a personal meaning. With wheat worth $2.26, it is well worth while to prevent that loss, if possible. And it is entirely possible. The chief source of loss is the inefficient operation of threshing machines.

Any standard threshing machine will do satisfactory work if kept in repair and operated intelligently. If the operator knows his machine, and sees that it is properly adjusted and operated, grain will come through clean and losses will be small. The farmer should know enough about the general operation of threshing machine to detect poor work, which means a direct loss to him.

Adjust Separator Carefully.

To do good work the separator must be set level, both crosswise and lengthwise, and then carefully adjusted to the particular job at hand. The greater part of the separation is done in the cylinder and immediately after the grain passes over it. If cracked grains are frequent there may be too much

Large pile shows grain wasted while threshing 2½ bushels—8 pints in this instance. Small pile shows grain wasted after adjustments had been made to machine—less than 1 pint. The unnecessary loss of 7 pints occurred every two minutes the separator was in operation. This means that 4½ per cent of the grain was lost.

end play of the cylinder, the speed may be too high, or the concaves may be set too high. The teeth may be crooked or too high and not centered. Too rapid speed will also crack grain. Dry grain demands a lower speed of the cylinder.

Unthreshed heads are often found in the tailings. This results from missing or broken teeth, or teeth too far apart, not centered, or badly worn; concave set too low, or concave with not enough teeth. The speed of the cylinder also causes many unthreshed heads. Damp, unripe or moldy grain requires more than normal speed of the cylinder to thresh it out well.

Operator Should Know Machine.

Grain is lost through the improper adjustment of other parts of the separator as well as the cylinder, so it is evident that the operator must be thoroughly familiar with the entire machine. It may not be possible to save all the grain now lost, but the careless operator who does not know how to adjust the different parts of his machine will waste a great amount unnecessarily. He will surely have to make frequent stops for adjustment. Every time a machine stops the whole crew must be idle until it starts again—loss of time to everybody concerned.

Manufacturers furnish instruction books on the care and operation of their threshing machine. They have spent years in experimenting, and they know how their machines should be run to secure the most satisfactory results. A great deal of the trouble experienced by the thresherman is due to his disregard of or even neglect to read the manufacturers' instructions.

There are other ways in which grain can be saved, but the proper operation of the separator is the most important. Efficient operation of the threshing machine should interest both threshermen and farmers.

OLD AGE STARTS WITH YOUR KIDNEYS

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs. This being true, it is easy to believe that by keeping the kidneys and digestive organs cleansed and in proper working order old age can be deferred and life prolonged far beyond that enjoyed by the average person.

For over 20 years GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been relieving the weaknesses and disability due to advancing years. It is a standard old-time home remedy and needs no introduction. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil is inclosed in odorless, tasteless capsules containing about 5 droplets each. Take them as you would a pill, with a small swallow of water. The oil stimulates the kidney action and enables the organs to throw off the poisons which are premature old age. New life and strength increase as you continue the treatment. When completely restored continue taking a capsule or two each day. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules will keep you in health and vigor for many years.

Do not wait until old age or disease have settled down for good. Go to your druggist and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three refundable, remember to ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand in sealed packages.

Unmistakable Signs.

Charles was looking through the hedge at the new neighbors who had just moved into the house next door. Suddenly he turned and ran in to his mother and said: "I bet the kid that's moved next door is a good sport, all right. He has freckles and has his big toe done up in a rag."

A Great Advantage.

The principal of a college was lecturing staff of teachers upon efficiency. "What," he demanded, "would be thought of a glovemaker who at the close of the season found 10 per cent of his stock returned because it fell below standard requirements? Why should we require a 100 per cent efficiency of the glove-maker and only 90 per cent of a teacher?" "Because," responded a teacher, "he can select his kids!"

From the spectroscopic measurements made at Mt. Wilson observatory stars (i.e., the speed with which they are approaching or receding from our solar system), it appears that the star A. G. Next to this comes Lelande, with a velocity of 325 kilometers a second, in the opposite direction.

FEDERAL SUPERVISION OF MEAT INDUSTRY IS URGED BY DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Sheep in the Chill Room of a Large Packing Plant Which Have Been Inspected and Passed as Good Quality Mutton.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

With meat prices to the consumer so high that he is denying himself, and with the prices for live stock, especially beef and lamb, so low to the producer that he is actually losing money, the nation is confronted with a grave problem which requires solution if we are not to suffer a decline in the live stock industry.

It is an anomalous situation. The department has endeavored to inform itself on the subject, and after conference with senators and members of the house who represent live-stock producing regions and who also feel deep concern for the welfare of consumers, deems it important to give to the public certain outstanding facts, which may be summarized as follows:

There is no longer need for meat conservation. The supply is plentiful, and patriotic citizens may freely disregard the meat-saving placards which are still displayed at many eating places.

Europe Needs Pork.

Europe needs our surplus pork, but is filling its beef requirements by imports from South America and Australia. Prices of beef cattle have fallen sharply since March 1 on account of the stoppage of exports for army use, and a slack demand for beef at home, due to the continuation of beef conservation under the mistaken idea that such conservation is still necessary to feed the people of Europe. Beef producers and lamb producers who sell their products at this time are confronted with the danger of heavy financial losses which tend to restrict production and cause a serious shortage in future.

The United States will never have a satisfactory and permanent solution of the problem until the manufacture, sale and distribution of meat products are officially supervised by authorized agents of the government, working in co-operation with state and municipal authorities, whose only aim is to serve the public at large and not any particular class. When the federal government is enabled by law to maintain a just supervision over the meat-producing industry that will prevent unfair dealings, speculation and profiteering, by furnishing the public from an unimpeachable source all the facts with regard to the industry, and when the states and municipalities are enabled by law to exercise similar supervision over interstate and local business, then only can we expect to have fair and stable markets in which producer and consumer alike will have a square deal.

Beef Industry Crisis.

It is important to present the facts concerning the prices for live stock and the prices for meat wholesale and retail. The following comparison exhibits the decline in the prices of cattle on foot:

Prices of Medium and Good Beef Steers at Chicago.

(CENTS PER POUND)

March 1, 1919.....15.50-18.50

July 1, 1919.....12.00-14.50

Decline 1.50- 3.90

Mean per cent decline, 14 per cent.

Prices of Choice and Prime Beef Steers on Foot at Chicago.

(CENTS PER POUND)

March 1, 1919.....18.50-20.25

July 1, 1919.....14.25-15.50

Decline 4.15- 4.75

Mean per cent decline, 23 per cent.

The alleged reason for this situation is the stoppage of export for army use abroad and the failure of civilian beef consumption to resume its normal status. The hotel and high-class family trade are not consuming the quantities of choice beef which they used before the war, and the families of moderate income are eating only cheaper cuts, the price of which must compensate in part for that of the cuts for which there is a smaller demand. The fact is evident that many persons who desire to eat more meat, especially beef and lamb, are denying themselves.

No Need for Conservation.

People do not realize that the necessity for conservation of foods, especially meat, no longer exists, except as a matter of reasonable economy and prevention of sinful waste. We have in prospect the greatest wheat crop in our history; we had in 1918 by far the largest production of pork we ever had, as well as a great increase in our beef, lamb and dairy production. Yet one sees everywhere in hotels, restaurants, and dining cars the "Save Food" signs, which were such a vital influence in the successful prosecution of the food campaign and incidentally, the winning of the war. These "Save Food" signs should now be disregarded. Consumers are unconsciously working harm to themselves and to live stock producers by now restricting their consumption of meat.

This situation is a real menace to the farmer and to the consuming public as well. Many cattle raised in response to the demand for meat production for the army are now maturing, and if marketed on a falling market will cause heavy loss to the producers, with the result that declining production may be expected in the future. Stockmen do not deserve to be penalized for their patriotism, but should be supported by the consuming public in an effort to restore consumption to the normal without delay.

Economy Corner

Mildew.

Mildew usually appears on the fibers of cotton and linen; it takes the form of small round dark spots; in reality it is a vegetable growth, or form of fungus, which develops on the fibers of the material. Its appearance is due to dampness, and reflects discredit on the work of the housekeeper, as the clothes must either have been put away damp or kept in a damp cupboard.

Owing to the nature of mildew it is difficult to remove. One of the simplest remedies is to moisten the stained fabric, rub it thickly with soft soap and sprinkle it with common salt. Place the material on the grass in the sunshine and keep it moist. Renew the treatment each day until the stain disappears.

A quicker method, and a sure one, is to keep the stained part in white material in a solution of bleaching liquor. To prepare the bleaching liquor, put half a pound of chlorinated lime into a basin and pour half a gallon of boiling water over it; add two tablespoonsfuls of washing soda, and stir to break up all the lumps, and to enable the water to extract all the chlorine. Strain carefully to remove all the powder and to make the liquid clear. Bottle and keep ready for use.

This liquor is used chiefly for the removal of obstinate organic stains, such as dyes, fruit, wine and old tea or coffee stains. But it should only be used for fabrics made from vegetable fibers, such as linen and cotton, as its application to wool and silk proves fatal to the fibers. The solution should never be stronger than one part of the liquor to four parts of hot water.

Tonic for the Bath.

A bath much favored by the Kneipists, along with the bare-feet habit, is formed from a solution of pine needles and pine cones. Cover with cold water about a pound of fresh pine needles and pine cones, broken in small pieces. Roll for half an hour, strain and add the solution to the bath. If you do not want to use the entire amount at once it can be heated and kept for future occasions. This has a tonic effect both on the nerves and the skin. It can be used on alternate days with a bath of sea salt.

Fresh Gloves.

Gloves should be kept as clean as possible, and of course should never reveal a slit. Silk the same color should be used to keep gloves in repair. For general street wear dark or medium toned gloves are to be preferred, unless one can afford white kid gloves of immaculate freshness.

Sheer and Dainty Lingerie

Lingerie seems to have reached the crest of the wave in sheerness and daintiness; one wonders what will happen next. Its loveliness is not born to waste its flesh-pink blush unseen, but quite the contrary. Camisoles and chemise, combinations and slips are all visible through sheer blouses that depend upon them for added charm. The blouse often serves merely "to veil the rose's bloom;" the camisole or other undergarment providing the most interesting contribution to the costume. Figured georgette, crepe de chine, lawn, laces and nets all play their exquisite parts in making up these undies. The finest batiste also holds the allegiance of gentlewomen who never waver in their loyalty to this soft fabric and the hand embroidery that it makes worth while.

An envelop chemise and a combination, both of American design and manufacture, are shown in the picture above. Flesh pink crepe de chine makes the practical chemise shown at the left, trimmed with insertion and edging of the familiar val lace that women love. A small yoke of Irish lace is set in at the front. Pink satin straps with bows suspend the chemise from the shoulders and the same ribbon makes a dignified bow with hanging loops and ends to embellish the front. This garment is delightfully cool for warm weather when the lightest union suit proves burdensome. A short undershirt and corset are worn under it.

Just because they are so pretty and for no other reason, the pink silk garments, with wide lace frills, flaunt their charm in company with this sensible chemise. There is a fad for some charming little frivolities and we delight to present each other them. Boudoir slippers of ribbon and lace match up with these dainty belongings.

The combination at the right is made of figured georgette. The body is shirred on two cords and edged with a full ruffl of plain georgette. Another ruffl froths about the waistline where the knickers are set on and ribbon forms the suspender over the shoulders. Finally a butterfly of plain georgette is the last beguiling touch that is sure to tempt feminine eyes into looking too long at a garment that is bound to prove irresistible. While georgette has proved much less fragile than it looks, underwear made of it is a luxury that the average woman will hardly indulge in. But crepe de chine has wearing qualities that make it really economical.

Georgette Coats.

Georgette evening coats or afternoon coats are not unusual. And really there is enough warmth in the georgette coat, light as it is, to protect the wearer from discomfort. Many of the best of these coats are trimmed with narrow bands of fur. The fur is not wide enough to seem bulky, but it is in charming contrast to the transparent material of the coats.

To Stop Falling Hair.

When the hair falls out in spots apply the following: Diluted rose water, 150 grams; aromatic vinegar, twenty grams; pure glycerin, ten grams; essence of nutmeg, fifteen grams; aloes, ten grams; alum.

"Forest Preserve—B.98"

By MYRTLE LEE

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western News paper Union.)

"A month at Ferndale will fix you up grandly," spoke Mr. Robert Harris to his young law partner, Leslie Travers.

"I am obliged to you," said the latter, "but it won't do."

"Why there are only three of my five daughters left at home now," observed Mr. Harris with a jocular smile.

"Bound to give me a dig on my alleged evasion of the gentler sex?" responded Travers. "All that is a fiction, and besides I know of no brighter, kinder friends than you and your family, but my physician has mapped out a six months' course for me, has discovered an ideal environment and I shall have to act under his direction."

"Well, get cured; that is all I want," spoke Mr. Harris kindly.

He thought the world of his young partner, who had been his student and assistant for five years and had then brilliantly won the most important legal battle of the year. It had been at a great cost, however. Travers had always been a close student and he had thrown his full natural intentness into the great case. The refection had come, his nerves had broken down, and to rebuild them he must entirely abandon work. There was hopeful anticipation in his face as he took a train for a town two hundred miles from the city, after shipping thither trunks and a variety of certain appurtenances requisite for a long bachelor experience. He put up at the hotel at Brompton and the next morning was called on by a town functionary.

"I have my instructions to install you in your position as warden of the forest preserve," said the official. "Your duties will not be very exciting, although your environment will be primitive."

In the official's automobile Travers was driven along a country road to the edge of a stretch of timber covering several hundred acres. At one corner was a large sign reading: "Forest Preserve—B. 98." Here there was a small hut composed of rough boards, from the roof of which protruded an ordinary stove pipe.

"Not a very inviting bungalow," smiled the official.

"But precisely what I expected and want," declared Travers. "If you will arrange to have what I have had shipped from the city sent down here I will install myself forthwith. The two rooms in this little shelter house will precisely suit my requirements. I can get provisions at the settlement, and I am sure I shall enjoy the rough and ready life."

The novelty of his environment had a salutary effect upon Travers. His duty comprised a patrol of the reserve several times a day, a final one at night, and the direction of two laborers who trimmed the trees and cut down the dead ones.

It was toward the end of his first month's sojourn that Travers met with a series of incidents which ultimately changed the entire trend of his career.

Twice he had seen a bent form, that of an old man, about the center of the timber, who had mysteriously disappeared before he could come upon him, and one night a girl figure flitted by him like the wind. Two evenings later, while he was seated reading in his little hut there came a tap at the window. Travers opened it to confront a young girl of about seventeen, deeply agitated.

"Oh, sir!" she quavered. "If you know anything about sickness or have any medicine with you, I beg of you to come with me without delay."

"What is the trouble, miss?" questioned Travers, attracted and interested by the pleading face and marked distress exhibited.

"It is my father; I fear he will die. Oh, sir, come! come! It is not far."

Travers snatched up a case of his own medicine and hurried outside. He was puzzled as his girl guide led him into the very depths of the reserve. As she came to a ravine choked up with fallen trees she took his hand, led him through a maze he had never penetrated and into a shelter, secret and half comfortable, where lay an old man on a bed of dried grass.

Travers worked over the old man until he had quite revived him. He wondered how long these refugees had been thus in hiding and questioned his right to allow them on the reserve.

The next day, however, he learned their sad story, and thenceforward was their friend and companion.

Darius West had a claim against a valuable piece of property, had quarreled with other contestants, and in the heat of a just battle had severely injured one of them. They had taken advantage of this to get out a warrant for his arrest. He had hurried to hiding, for once in their hands he feared they would persecute him to the limit.

Looking into those affairs as an expert lawyer, Leslie Travers took up the case. Within a month he had Mr. West and his daughter, Merceda, under safe protection and began the prosecution against his enemies.

There never was a more grateful man than Darius West when he was awarded the fortune rightfully his own. There was never a more appreciative being than Merceda, and never a happier bride, when the young lawyer returned to friends and business with a charming life partner.

Offers Problems That Do Not Bother the Farmer Who Uses Horse-Drawn Implements.

ELIMINATE WASTE OF TIME

Necessary to Lay Out Fields So That High-Class Job Can Be Done—Short Turns Are Awkward—Advantages Summarized.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Plowing with tractors presents some problems that never bother the man who uses horse-drawn implements. It is necessary to lay out fields, so that a high-class job of plowing can be done over the entire area with the minimum use of a horse-drawn plow in starting and finishing the work. The methods in general use are divided into two classes—those in which the plows are elevated and no plowing is done across the ends, and those in which the plows are left in the ground continuously. In most cases better plowing can be done when the plows are idle across the ends of the fields, and for this reason the methods of this class are more popular, but many farmers prefer the other methods, as they eliminate waste of time and labor.

Plowmen using tractors wish to reduce to a minimum the time spent in running with plows out of the ground. While it is necessary to do some traveling while the plows are idle, care should be taken not to do too much of it, as it reduces the number of acres which can be plowed in a day, making the tractor that much less efficient. Short turns, however, are awkward for most tractors, and where such turns are necessary the operator often has more or less difficulty in getting the outfit in the correct position for starting into the new furrow at the right point. Some tractors turn more easily in one direction than others, and this should be taken into consideration in laying out the fields.

Advantages Summarized.

The advantages of plowing by the methods in which the plows are idle across the ends of the fields are that the short, awkward turns are eliminated, except in some cases at the beginning and ends of the lands, and usually less spaces will be left at the corners to be plowed with horses. The advantage of the other methods that little or no time is lost in traveling with the plows out of the ground, and that ordinarily the number of dead furrows and back furrows will be considerably less.

In using the first-named methods it is necessary to measure the lands in the center of the field accurately, leaving an equal area on all sides of the field in which to turn the outfit, and which can be plowed last by running the tractor completely around the field several times. If one end of the field is unfenced the outfit can be pulled out into a road or lane, or an adjoining field, for turning. It may be preferable to plow up to the fence on the two sides as the body of the field is being plowed, and leave the headland only across the end of the field which is fenced. The width of the headland will depend largely on the turning radius of the tractor. With easily handled outfits it is not necessary to leave more than 10 or 20 feet.

Careful Plowing Saves Time.

If the field is to be finished up in the best manner, with no irregular, unplowed strips between the land or at the edges, it is essential that care be taken to have the headland of the same width clear around the field, to have the distances measured exactly when starting new lands, and to have the first furrows as nearly straight as possible. A little extra time taken in measuring off the necessary distances and setting plenty of stakes for guidance will nearly always be more than returned in saving time at the finish. If the tractor pulls three or more plows, cutting a total width of three or more feet, some effort should be made to have the width of the headlands an exact multiple of the total width of the plow, so that the last strip across the field will exactly cut out the land or finish it to the fence. This will do away with the necessity of making a trip across the field, probably over the plowed ground, to turn a narrow strip which has been left unplowed.

CHECK TOMATO LEAF BLIGHT BY SPRAYING

As Many as Seven Applications Made in West Virginia.

Color and Solidity of Fruit Was Improved and 39 Per Cent Increase in Yield Secured—Bordeaux Soap Mixture Used.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"I wouldn't grow tomatoes in a blight infested region without spraying," says S. L. Dodd, Jr., extension pathologist for the United States department of agriculture and West Virginia agricultural experiment station, who sprayed tomatoes for the control of blight in six counties of West Virginia in 1918. Thorough spraying was the keynote of his success. He made six, and in some fields seven applications, using spray mixture at the rate of 150 gallons an acre for mature plants. Spraying improved color and solidity of fruit, reduced rot and sunscald, and increased the yield of ripe fruit 39 per cent, and of both green and ripe fruit 55 per cent.

A small knapsack compressed-air sprayer was used in this work. Such sprayers are light, easy to operate, and produce a fine misty spray. Several different kinds, varying somewhat in shape and construction, but built on the compressed-air principle, are now offered for sale.

The spray formula used was 5-5-50 Bordeau soap mixture, composed of five pounds of copper sulphate, five pounds stone lime, three pounds resin fish oil soap, and fifty gallons of water.

To reduce the work of preparing spray mixtures the following stock solutions were made: Five pounds of copper sulphate (blue stone) was dissolved by suspending it in a wooden vessel containing five gallons of water. Copper sulphate corrodes iron and tin. Five pounds of stone lime (quick-lime) was slaked in another vessel by slowly adding water at first and later increasing the volume to five gallons. Three pounds of resin fish oil soap was diluted in a third vessel by stirring it in hot water until thin and increasing the volume to five gallons by adding water of ordinary temperature.

These stock solutions keep indefinitely if not mixed or weakened by rain, but the lime should be covered to prevent drying out and air-staking. The level of the liquid when freshly made and after each spray period should be marked on each vessel, and water added when needed to restore loss by evaporation.

Ten gallons of spray mixture are prepared by taking one gallon of each freshly stirred stock solution and increasing it to three and one-third gallons by adding water, and by pouring together and stirring the three diluted solutions thus made. The resulting mixture is ready for use as soon as strained and should be used while fresh, as it deteriorates by standing.

CARE OF HORSES' SHOULDERS

Prevent Accumulation of Dirt and Dandruff on Collars, Especially If Soreness Develops.

Do not use sweat pads. Keep collars clean of dandruff and dirt, especially if soreness develops. Sponge the shoulders of work horses with cold water at night after work. If they are sweaty at noon, sponge at noon also. Care should be taken in fitting collars on work horses. Many collars are too big or too loose. If the withers are fat or especially full, the fitting of collars will need extra care.—Ohio State University.

GAPES IN LITTLE CHICKENS

Disease Kills More Young Fowls Than Any Other Ailment—Discourages Poultry Keeping.

Probably more little chickens are killed by gapes than by any other one disease. On nearly every farm at least a few chickens die every spring of this trouble, and on many farms the loss is so great as to discourage the keeping of poultry.

Made In the Heart of the Hardwood Region

DURING the past ten years the automobile, the manure and lime spreader occupied the time of many wagon makers. But Thornhill stuck to the wagon and to the farmer trade. Over rough mountain roads, through swamps, at logging camps, these wagons did duty daily.

Thus the fame of the Thornhill spread, and the demand grew steadily greater.

Tough Highland Hickory

Their plant is located in the very shadow of mighty forests of mountain hickory. The ground is hard—the climate severe. The wood has to fight for life. So it grows sturdy and strong—close-grained and tough—well nigh unbreakable. It has nearly twice the strength of hickory that grows in softer ground, which is usually brittle-brash. The white oak, growing under similar conditions, develops a similar toughness.

The oak and hickory are dried outdoors under shelter and kept there from three to five years—so piled that the air can circulate freely. The sap dries in it.

Calendar Facts.

The month of January always begins on the same day of the week as October and the same is true of April and July, September and December, February, March and November also begin on the same day of the week. This, however, is only true in normal years of 365 days. A century can never begin on Wednesday, Friday or Saturday. Furthermore, the ordinary year ends on the same day of the week as that on which it begins.

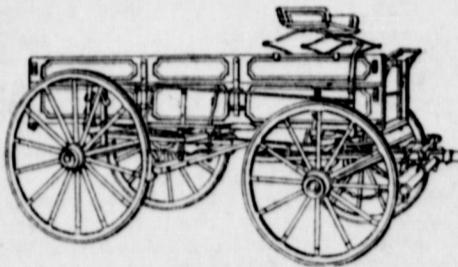

Taking a Plebiscite.

Plebiscite is a political term borrowed from the French, meaning a vote of all the electors in a country taken on some specific question. It is from the Latin plebiscitum, a decree of the plebs, or law made by the common people, and is somewhat similar to the referendum. A notable example of the use of the plebiscite in French history was in 1852, when the memorable coup d'état of 1851 was confirmed and the title of emperor was given to Napoleon III.

Matter of Adaptability.

Adaptability works toward contentment; to fit ourselves willingly and cheerfully into the changed conditions that exist today in countless homes throughout this broad land means the lifting of another heavy burden from the heads of the households. Many things in our way of living which we would have once called essentials we now regard as useless, taxing our time and resources. And yet we can live fully, pleasantly, even more smoothly than in other days.—Exchange.

Cash Premiums of $40,000 Is the Guarantee Fair Banner Beef Show

Of the $110,000 offered in prizes for live stock and agricultural exhibits at the seventeenth annual Kentucky State Fair to be held in Louisville the week of September 8-13, $40,000 has been apportioned to the Beef Cattle and Fatted and Feeding Cattle Department alone. In consequence, it is expected that the greatest exhibit of fine cattle in the history of the Fair will be entered for competition in this department.

It was the purpose of the State Fair management, in assigning this gigantic sum to the cattle division of the Fair to stimulate the rapidly waning industry of cattle raising and breeding and the interest already exhibited proves the potency of the move. Three of the leading brokers of America have entered many carloads of the choicest steers and she stuff in the fatted and feeding cattle class and the whole allotment will be sold at public auction to be held on the State Fair grounds, beginning Thursday of Fair week. Jack Lawler, Sherrill and Lett and William Daniels and Brother of Chicago, are the consignors of three cars of steers and two of heifers for the first three cars of steers and two of heifers for the second, and four cars of steers and one of heifers for the last named.

These entries have every one been selected by competent judges from the many thousands of cattle passing through the Union Stock Yards in the past ninety days and will offer a splendid opportunity for feeders and dealers. Although a lesser sum was assigned to the beef cattle department last year a most encouraging exhibition was the response to the Fair's substantial premium awards and, arguing from this fact it is expected that the competition and auction in the cattle department will eclipse any former event in Fair history. A great showing of Herefords marked the 1918 exhibit, but a better one is looked for this season. With $5,000 offered in the Short-horn Division it is expected that this competition, which is open to the world, will bring forth an unusual showing.

The Black-faced Aberdeen Angus have also developed popularity and are regarded as strong "comers."

A Kentucky Futility with $3,000 in awards, is announced for breeders and owners of the above named varieties of cattle. $1,000 is set aside for the Herefords, Shorthorns and Aberdeen Angus breeds.

The futurity is limited to Kentucky cattle only and is for animals under two years of age. There will be six classes for each breed. The various rules and rings will be found in catalogs which will be mailed on application to Fount T. Kremer, Secretary Kentucky State Fair, Louisville, Ky.

AUTO RACES SCHEDULED TO OFFER "RED BLOODED" SPORT AT COMING FAIR

American sports are usually of a vigorous, "red blooded" variety, and nothing appeals to the sons and daughters of "Uncle Sam" like a contest which calls for daring, skill and speed, and in no game will be found a more perfect embodiment of these assets than in automobile racing of a type to be featured at the State Fair which will be held in Louisville the week of September 8-13.

During the two final days of the State Fair, racing events will be staged on the fine oval of the race track in front of the grand stand and many of the best-known stars of American and foreign tracks will go after established records with a savagery which is certain to result in surprising changes in the sport-ledgers. During the 1918 campaign many established records were wiped out by Sig Rughdahl, Fred Horey, Jules Ellingshoe, Leon Duray, Ray Lamkin and others and it is expected that the contests this year will develop new points and bring the automobile features into spectacular promise as one of the most delightful, stirring and sensational offerings of the entire celebration.

Hughdahl, who was a sensation last year with his famous Fiat Six, has practically rebuilt his car and it is said to be a genuine whirlwind now. As an example of its going quality it may be said that on last Labor Day at Lincoln, Neb., Huggdahl traveled a mile in 1:01.60 and two miles in 2:02.60, the old records being beaten several seconds in each instance. Horey has a new mount about which he is said to be secretive and in which he promises to confound his rivals.

Ellingshoe remains faithful to his famous "Wild-cat" and will tool this wonder at the Fair. Duray has jumped to the Case racing outfit in place of George Clark, and Lambkin, who has sold his "Sun-Ray," will blossom out with an American instead of a foreign product.

REDUCED RATES ON ALL RAILROADS

The State Fair management is pleased to announce that a special rail-road excursion rate has been secured from the Southern Passenger Traffic Committee and that from all points in Kentucky, and from Cincinnati, O., and Jellico, Tenn., one and one-half fare will be charged for the round trip where the fare amounts to 25 cents or over. Tickets will be sold from September 6 to 12, inclusive, and for trains which are scheduled to arrive in Louisville before noon of September 13, with a final limit of September 15.

The colossal total of $110,000.00 is listed by the various premiums quoted in the 1919 Kentucky State Fair catalogs which are now off the press and under process of distribution in Kentucky and throughout various sections of the country. Keen interest will undoubtedly be aroused among the farmers and stock breeders of the Commonwealth by the splendid awards offered and the result is certain to be one of the most brilliant and successful fairs ever held in this country.

When, in lowing at tempis, all were knocked down except the three at the corners, the set was said to be "knocked into a cocked hat."

Memory Must Be Cultivated.

In any system of mental development, the memory must be cultivated at the outset, and that cultivation must continue unceasingly. It is fortunate indeed that every average person has a mind capable of excellent memory. It is only necessary that the native powers should be properly employed.

Edinburgh Landmark Gone.

An interesting bit of old Edinburgh, dating back about 1600, has been burned. The destroyed building, which consisted of a single story and attic, was one of the landmarks of the Holyrood area. It was the old Yew Tree tavern, and stood inside the bounds of the Holyrood sanctuary for debtors, within which in days of yore, the fugitive was free from the attentions of his creditors.

Tempers and Tight Collars.

Dr. Leonard Williams, lecturing on "Common Sense," at a nursing conference and exhibition in London, said that people with tight collars did not drain their brains properly, and often suffered from bad tempers. He had noticed that since women had given up high collars and were wearing garments which gave complete freedom to the neck they had become sweeter tempered.

Concert With 300 Singers and 71st Regiment N. Y. G. Band, Sunday Before the Fair Opens

Sunday before the official opening of the seventeenth annual Kentucky State Fair scheduled to be held in Louisville the week of September 8-13, the State Fair grounds will be the scene of one of the most picturesque, enjoyable and unusual entertainments of fair history, in the grand sacred concert to be thrillingly rendered by a massed chorus of three hundred or more voices, accompanied by the famous 71st Regiment New York Guards Band.

The 71st is an organization which "made musical history" during the war and figured in much of the important war work of the metropolis. The band is also in constant demand for victrola and piano-player record work and rates as second to none in this line.

The organization is made up of forty well-trained, strikingly-uniformed players, led by the dashing, attractive, gifted leader, Lieut. Lambert L. Eben, The repertoire to be offered by this band will include some of the most pretentious and beautiful compositions of the musical world and singers with the 71st, as well as of the Louisville Jubilate Choral Association furnishing the three hundred voices for the chorus, will figure spectacularly in the solo numbers.

The view of the fair itself, ready for the gates to swing wide on the first celebration in four years unshadowed by the clouds of war, promises a panorama of striking beauty and impressiveness. As far as the eye can reach will be spread out the bounties Nature has lavished on a fortunate land and the celebration should, and doubtless will, hold for many a far deeper significance and arouse a greater depth of genuine thanksgiving, than any exhibition has heretofore offered in State Fair history.

After a year's efforts in Life's vigorous school the Midway of the Kentucky State Fair offers old and young alike a "recess" which is as enjoyable as it is ephemeral. And after the especially trying and saddening times of the war a playtime and playground is especially appealing.

In order to mark the momentous and joyous occasion of this first reunion in four years unshadowed by the clouds of war, the State Fair management has secured an attractive array of features in the World at Home Shows, which are descriptively named, as it is claimed that the eighteen or twenty attractions gathered under the banners of the World at Home were gleaned from many parts of the globe and bring to the Fair visitors the wonders and amusements of foreign lands.

One feature which the crowds will find vividly alluring and spectacularly beautiful is the exhibition called "The La Rose Electric Fountain," said to be one of the newest and most thrilling effects ever carried with a carnival staged on one of the smallest permanent race tracks in America.

La Fayette the Great and his imitable mysteries are said to be rivaled in the offering of Omar Sami, and his "House of a Thousand Wonders."

A small but potent entertainer is to greet Fair visitors in the person of the Princess Elizabeth, "wonder doll of the world." This elfin creature is only 32 inches high and weighs only 27 pounds.

In addition to the great array of entertaining features contained in the roster of the World at Home Shows, there are several musical organizations of merit, and a half dozen novel riding devices.

MULE ARISTOCRATS ENTERED

A mule stake carrying premium awards of $1,000 was introduced at the Kentucky State Fair in 1918. This was a sum hitherto unprecedented in a like event and the announcement aroused keen interest among breeders and owners.

At the Fair to be held in Louisville the week of September 8-13, of this year, this same money will be offered and in consequence the entry lists will carry some of the best stock in the country.

Of the assured entries it is said that one of the greatest jack colts ever foaled will come from Montgomery county, and a yearling and jack likewise said to be wonders. Clark county will be represented by a jennet between six and twelve months old whose ears measure 32 inches in length and who is in other respects a wonder. Nelson, Washington and Shelby are boasting of the stock they will send and Boyle county which has carried away the ribbons for a number of years, expects to repeat the performance. Altogether the mule and jack class bids fair to be one of the liveliest stock features of the seventeenth annual celebration.

WAR BALLOON EXHIBITION PROMISES THRILLS AT FAIR

The Kentucky State Fair management is unable to state definitely as yet that an exhibition of balloon flights and parachute drops will be an unprecedented attraction at the Kentucky State Fair the week of September 8-13, but there is every indication that the Government will sanction the showing which will be one of the most interesting the Fair has ever presented.

It is the plan and plea of the State Fair management that the 31st U. S. Balloon Company be stationed on the grounds during the Fair and if this request is granted the entire company will figure in balloon ascensions, parachute drops and balloon flights which will give sensational illustrations of war-time maneuvers in the air.

Among the "sky vessels" will be the great "Sausage Balloons" used in observation work during the war, and the dirigible balloon will also be an attraction of unusual interest by reason of the fact that there are few pilots in civilian life who can manage them and they are therefore seldom on exhibition. Public attention will center on this balloon it is said, by reason of its enormous size and their adaptability to maneuvering, bombing, etc.

But the attention and interest of the crowds will undoubtedly center on the mammoth captive balloons in which passengers may daily soar cloudward and thereby gather some idea in advance of the method of travel predicted as a common carrier in the near future.

company. There are said to be 15,000 gallons of water hurled into mid-air by this fountain at every performance, the thunderous waves falling over statuesque groupings of Venus-like living models while aurora-like flames color the falls and graceful nymphs dance in the spray.

Another attraction of aqueous type is the sensational performance of the world's champion lady fancy and trick diver, Lucile Anderson, and her company of mermaids. Miss Anderson is known as the "Amphibian Wonder" and her under-water feats and endurance tests are said to be unbelievable.

An exceptional feature is heralded in a show called "Chinatown." Unlike the average flimsy pretense at Orientalism, this offering is said to faithfully duplicate the dark, mysterious underground world which was once San Francisco's Chinatown before the great earthquake wiped this cesspool of sin from the earth.

Good, rousing excitement will be offered in the Polack Brothers Big Indoor Circus, with its rough-riding, animal acts and gun-play, as well as in the Hager motorcycle and automobile racing features which will be

RED CROSS EXTENDS
ACTIVITIES TO BENEFIT
RURAL COMMUNITIES

THE Red Cross is your Red Cross, serving you at home, representing you abroad.

It is for you, now that the war emergency is past, to make the most of its far-reaching ability to serve.

Home Service work, undertaken by the Red Cross Department of Civilian Relief, served in war time to aid the families of fighting men and to relieve anxiety of soldiers.

Out of experience gained in this work comes the Red Cross plan for the future. The common objective of all Red Cross work is to improve general living conditions, to conserve the health and to promote the welfare of all people.

In the larger cities community improvement has already reached a high state of development. It is left for the Red Cross to assist in furthering such work at the request of established agencies.

But in the small cities and towns the Red Cross service is only limited by the interest and response of the public to the opportunity offered by the peace time extension of the Red Cross.

Home Service is not charity work. The Red Cross organization is open to all. All may benefit by making the most of its far-reaching ability to serve.

Health, education, the development of the public health nursing idea and allied forms of community betterment work will be dealt with as individual problems where Red Cross assistance is invited.

NEW DIRECTOR STATES
PLANS FOR R. C. EXTENSION
IN THE RURAL DISTRICTS

DO you know that there are 3,700 Home Service Sections now operating under the Red Cross organization in the United States. Of these, 2,900 are in places having a population under 8,000.

With these facts in mind, the Bureau of Rural Organization has been created in the Red Cross Department of Civilian Relief, and Prof. E. L. Morgan, of the faculty of the Massachusetts College of Agriculture, has been appointed director. In the future every Red Cross worker is to be informed as to where the community can get help in other than Red Cross work, and will consider it part of his duty to connect the community with those sources of help.

"There are numerous problems," says Professor Morgan, "which can be met only on the basis of a county. There are a number of counties in which this sort of work has been done and the following has been the general procedure:

"1. A get-together of the county-wide agencies for exchange of plans and projects and for mutual information about the work of each.

"2. A study of the county concerning the outstanding needs of the county as a whole and certain towns in particular.

"3. A conference of the people called by these various agencies.

"4. The presentation by various agencies of their program of work for the coming year.

"5. Some sort of medium through which the county-wide agencies may come together frequently to keep in touch with each other.

"The Red Cross does not assume that it is a correlative agency with a purpose of assembling other bodies.

"It is the plan of the workers to develop rural organizations in the various Red Cross divisions as rapidly as is feasible so that the development of the rural community, the heart and soul of country life, may be brought about."

REPORT SHOWS INCREASE IN HOME SERVICE WORK
DURING THE PAST MONTH

WHILE the new work of the Red Cross Home Service sections is being launched throughout Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, the aftermath of war cases is not being neglected.

The last monthly report from the Civilian Relief office in Cleveland shows 108 home service sections organized in Ohio—106 in Indiana and 144 in Kentucky. These 357 organized bands of workers have dealt with 40,709 families during the month—giving specialized information in 30,716 instances and rendering tangible service in 30,634 cases.

HAIL SPELLS DESTRUCTION

I am writing a combined policy that should attract every tobacco grower in the county. It gives you protection in the field against HAIL, and in the barn against FIRE, LIGHTNING, WINDSTORM AND TORNADO. This policy automatically covers your first load into the barn. For instance, if by chance you should happen to have a load in the barn and a storm arises with hail and lightning, and your crop is destroyed in the field by hail and your barn is struck by lightning (this happened twice last year) burning same, you will collect for damage done by Hail as well as your load in the barn.

I also wish to announce that I can now give you $200.00 an acre protection in the field against Hail. Several have asked for this and I have had to refuse until today, but I have it for you now.

HAIL RATES.

$50.00 per Acre in field and $200. per acre in Barn for four months at $7. per acre.

$100.00 per acre in field and $200.00 per acre in Barn for four months at $10.00 per acre.

$200.00 per acre in field and $200.00 per acre in Barn for four months at $17.00 per acre.

TORNADO RATES.

$50.00 per acre against Hail with $200.00 per acre in barn for three months at $6.40 per acre.

$100.00 per acre against Hail, with $200.00 per acre in barn for three months at $9.40 per acre.

$200.00 per acre against Hail, with $200.00 per acre in barn for three months at $16.40 per acre.

From all available indications it looks as if Tobacco will be as high this year, if not higher, than last, as few planted as much as last while others not any at all, so why not spend a few dollars and protect you.

Policies go into effect at noon (12 o'clock) Thursday, July 10th, so act at once. Either phone, write or see me at the GARRARD BANK or KENGARLAN HOTEL.

Napoleon had a large diamond set in the hilt of the sword he wore at his wedding with the famous Josephine, he believed that the gem would bring him good fortune.

Putting the Clock Ahead.

How times have changed. The old-fashioned girl who used never to sit up later than nine o'clock has a daughter now who just starts out at nine o'clock for the evening.

Probably He Did.

As Mary came running in from play the other day she met her grandmother, whom she had never seen before and who had very long whiskers. "Oh," she exclaimed when she saw him, "do you keep those whiskers on all the time, even when you go to bed?"

Franklin Still Popular.

Books printed by Benjamin Franklin, or on the composition of which he worked, command high prices. At a sale in Philadelphia of a library containing books that had belonged to a signer of the Declaration of Independence, no less than thirty of these rarities, many of them bearing Franklin's imprint, were disposed of.

Made Attractive Scene.

Formerly a favorite Mecca of the tourist in Virginia tobacco towns was the tobacco factory, where the industry in progress made a picturesque scene, and the singing by negro hands, as they worked, of the quaint and melodious folk and spiritual songs of their race, provided unique entertainment.

Only a Shepherd Dog.

A shepherd dog owned by a man in Leominster, Mass., says a writer in Our Dumb Animals, roused the family by his barking one January night. The husband, wife and two children barely escaped. Once in safety the dog's master tried to locate his brave rescuer, but the smoke was too dense. The body was found near the kitchen door leading into the front hall. Only a dog!

Carnegie "Hero Fund."

In April, 1904, Andrew Carnegie established a hero fund of $5,000,000 for the benefit of the dependents of those losing their lives in heroic efforts to save others, or for the heroes themselves, surviving though injured. The endowment is known as the Carnegie hero fund and is placed in the hands of a committee composed of 21 persons, residents of Pittsburgh.

Buttonholeless Collar.

Instead of buttonholes, a new collar for men has slots to slip over the buttons, those in front interlocking to hold the collar securely.

Ruby's Significance.

Marbodens, bishop of Rennes, who wrote early in the twelfth century, said that a ruby signifies divine power and love, dignity and royalty. It has always been considered one of the most beautiful gems and the rarest.

Something Just as Good.

Americans demand poetry that is "red-blooded, human and vital," according to one who calls himself an authority. The supply of this kind of poetry will always be limited, it is to be feared, but there is plenty of fiction that would serve as a substitute, to say nothing of the movies.—Rockester Democrat and Chronicle.

To Keep Books Fresh.

To prevent mold on books, place a few drops of lavender and Canadian balsam in a back corner of each shelf. This will not injure the bindings of leather books as sulphur compounds do, but helps to preserve the bindings. The two substances are easily obtained.

Something of an Imputation.

A well-known surgeon was performing an operation on a patient when a fire started at a warehouse across the road, illuminating the whole operating theater. Having finished, the surgeon turned to the nurse and said dryly: "I say, nurse, I notice the patient is coming to. I think you had better turn the blinds. I don't want him to think the operation hasn't been a success!"

Locusts Used as Food.

Locusts are eaten in many countries where they are roasted or fried in butter. They are also preserved in brine and often dried in the sun. They thus appear in the markets of Arabia, Syria, Egypt and Madagascar, and are even exported as an article of commerce. They are also candied and eaten as a delicacy in China.

Peach Tree Grown in Pot.

Recent importations of the United States Bureau of Plant Industry include a pot-grown peach tree from Rev. George Campbell, a South China missionary. A tree only 15 inches tall ripened five good-sized edible clingstone peaches. The plant is said to come true to seed, and it is predicted that fruit growers will develop a remarkable new race of dwarf peaches.

No Salt Exhaustion.

Fuel eventually will be exhausted, as also will many other necessities, but not so with salt. Drillers for oil in Texas and Louisiana recently found great salt deposits a few hundred feet below the surface. Some of these beds were 2,000 feet thick.

Make for Business Success.

The foundations for success in business are work, perseverance and character. Different men who have triumphed in various spheres of business may set down their own experiences and views in other ways, but you will practically always find that the summing up comes to those three items in the end.

Had Origin in America.

There has been much controversy over the song, "The Red, White and Blue," but the logical conclusion is that the English adapted their words from the American song, which was written by Thomas A. Becket, an Englishman, after he had made America his home. Before this song was written, in 1860, no similar version was known in England.

Lincoln's "Lost Speech."

On the twenty-ninth of May, in 1856, Lincoln made a speech at the first Republican state convention in Illinois that is remembered as Lincoln's "Lost Speech." Lincoln, who was one of the delegates, was suggested for governor, but he proposed that William Bissell should be nominated instead. The suggestion was accepted and Lincoln addressed the convention for one hour, speaking with such fire and eloquence that the surprised and interested reporters forgot to take notes and his great speech was never recorded.

Women seem to have become much addicted to wearing neckpieces of many kinds. A little journey through shops and departments that carry neckwear reveals such a world of it and such a variety of it that there must be a great demand for all kinds of neckwear. Many of the pieces are intended to replace summer furs. These include scarfs made of plushes, ostrich bows, ostrich capes and capes of marabout feathers or marabout finished with ostrich fringe. This ostrich fringe, which appears like marabout in black, white and natural color, is used in borders and bands in scarfs of gold and silver tissue.

Some of the new plumes used for scarfs do not attempt a close imitation of fur but suggest the most popular summer furs, as ermine and broadtail and moleskin. Besides these there are some handsome satin scarfs and capes trimmed with narrow bands of real fur, shown with hats to match like the smart affair that is shown at the right of the two figures above. Rich silk tassels and silk embroidered motifs put this in a class with the handsomest furs.

Both ostrich and marabout make beautiful capes in the style of that shown at the right of the picture.

Nearly all of these are in the natural tanpe color of the feathers, but in ostrich capes and bows there is often a mixture of white and natural dyes.

Ruffs made of malines in very full plaits and ruffs made of loops of wide satin ribbon are among old acquaintances that find themselves returned to favor, now that everything in neckwear proves to be of interest. They are not at all difficult to make, the plaits or loops are simply stitched on to a band that lies about the neck, and they fasten with ties of narrow satin ribbon.

Small chokers and other small neckpieces in furs appear to have displaced larger neckpieces and capes for summer wear and narrow scarfs of satin finished at the ends with fringe, prove themselves a chic novelty on women who know how to wear them well.

The Lincoln Pipe Line & Refining Co.

Incorporated Under Laws of the State of Kentucky.

STANFORD, KENTUCKY

The Big Money In Oil is in the Refining Business

According to the Wall Street Journal 83 per cent. of the Assets of Standard Oil Co., is Invested in Refining and Marketing Business.

A Stream Of Liquid Gold Pours Out Of A Pipe Line.

REFINERY

IS THE HUB AROUND WHICH EVERY LARGE OIL COMPANY IN THE COUNTRY HAS BEEN BUILT.

A pipe line is one of the best investments in the oil business. After the first expense of the right-of-way, buying of the pipes and laying of the line, the expensive part of the work is done, the upkeep of the line amounts to very little, and we have heard the remark about something that was sure as being a "Pipe Line Cinch." While it is true that the crude oil is the world's greatest assets, and a stream of liquid gold pours out of a pipe line, it is also true that the oil coming out of a pipe line is a stream of liquid gold for the owners of the pipe line. It flows while you sleep and every barrel of the oil means sure dividends for the stockholder of the company.

THE LINCOLN PIPE LINE & REFINING CO., Incorporated under the laws of the State of Kentucky, at Stanford, Kentucky, with an authorized capital stock of $250,000.00 divided into 25,000 shares of $10.00 each, sold at par, full paid and non-assessable. The company is being financed on a safe, sound and conservative basis. There is no preferred, watered, bonus or promotion stock.

THE LINCOLN PIPE LINE & REFINING CO., will build a pipe line from Stanford Lincoln county to the Southwestern part of Lincoln county to relieve the congested condition of the oil fields of this country, as the production of oil has exceeded the facilities for getting the oil to the market.

There is only one question about a pipe line and refinery being a financial success, and that is having the oil to refine. Of this we are assured, and we hope that nobody doubts that gasoline and fuel oil are salable products.

As the pipe line will control the oil handled through it, an oil refinery plant will be built near Stanford with a capacity of 500 to 1,000 barrels per day.

A PIPE LINE IS LENDING A HELPING HAND TO THE OIL MAN.

An oil well without the facilities to market the oil is like the rich man up a tree with a sack of gold and the great flood waters surging all around him. He has the wealth but cannot use it to any advantage for himself; and when the nervy oil prospector has found the oil, then he commences to look around for a pipe line to carry the oil to the market, and here is where the pipe line lends a helping hand by providing a way for him to send the oil to the market and bring back the golden returns in money.

ESTIMATED PROFITS.

Estimated profits of a refining plant with a capacity of 1,000 barrels of crude oil per day of 24 hours.

Daily Gross Receipts—
500 bbls 21,000 gallons gasoline at 18c... $3,780.00
150 bbls 6,300 gallons engine dists, at 6c... 378.00
100 bbls, 4,200 gallons cylinder oil, at 10c 420.00
250 bbls fuel oil, at $1.75 437.50
1,000 barrels $5,015.50

Daily Cost of Production—
1,000 bbls. high grade crude oil delivered $2,750.00
Labor, royalty, fuel, etc. 175.00
Office and marketing expense 75.00
Upkeep, taxes, insurance, etc. 15.00
Statement—
Daily gross receipts $5,015.00
Daily cost operation 3,015.00
Daily net profit $2,000.00

Annual net receipts 300 days at $2,000 per day, $600,000.00, or 250 per cent on a $250,000.00 investment.

We believe that the above tabulation of figures is a conservative estimate of the earning power of a plant such as we will build. You may cut the estimate in half and you will readily see we still have a profit of 125 per cent on our capital stock.

A refinery plant at Iowa Park, built two years ago, paid to its stockholders for the year ending April 15, 1918, 290 per cent, dividends, setting aside 810 per cent for the enlargement of the plant and the general upkeep and incidentals thus making a total net profit of 1,100 per cent, in twelve months' time.

A PIPE LINE INCREASES THE VALUE OF OIL PROPERTY.

There is nothing more stimulating to an oil field than a pipe line. It is always true that the oil must be found before a pipe line is thought of, but when the oil has been found the next thing that is thought REFINING STOCKS PAY BIG DIVIDENDS.

Some of the best paying stocks in America today are oil refining stocks, as illustrated below:

The Ponca City, Okla., Refinery, after paying almost unbelievable dividends for two years, sold out to another company at a price that returned to each stock-holder $2,350 for every $100 invested.

An investment of $100 made in the Wichita Independent Oil and Refining Company's stock netted $2,500. eighteen months later.

The Odessa Oil & Refining Company was organized five months ago—their stock is now quoted at 3 for 1.

It is reported that in 1917 the Panhandle Refining Company paid a dividend of 270 per cent. The Wichita Valley Refining Company paid a dividend of 290 per cent. The Atlantic Refining Company paid a dividend of 258 per cent.

THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF KANSAS, in 1913 made over 110 per cent on its capital of $1,000,000.

THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF NEW YORK during 1912 made over 100 per cent, net profit on its capital of $30,000,000.

THE WATER-PIERCE OIL COMPANY, from 1900 to 1915 made an average of over 500 per cent, net profit a year on its capital of $400,000.

SOLAR REFINING COMPANY, in 1913 made over 184 per cent. net profit on its capital stock of $5,000,000.

THE ANGLO-AMERICAN REFINING COMPANY earned during 1912 100 per cent. on its capital stock of $5,000,000.

THE ATLANTIC REFINING COMPANY, earned 128 per cent. during 1916 on its capital stock of $5,000,000.

THE CONTINENTAL OIL COMPANY, in 1915 earned 130 per cent. net profit on its capital stock of $300,000.

THE OKIO OIL COMPANY, during 1916 earned over 100 per cent. on its capital stock of $15,000,000.

THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF CALIFORNIA, during 1914 earned 130 per cent. on its original capital stock of $25,000,000.

COSDEN & COMPANY, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, made over 100 per cent. net profit a year since it commenced refining in 1909.

The above instances show some of the big profits made and which are being made by the crude oil refineries in the United States.

The profits of the refineries and pipe lines are enormous. This is testified by the fact that stock in refineries having been in operation three and four years cannot be bought for $35.00 on the original $1.00 invested.
